Kenyon Given Highest Award for Exports

(Houston, Texas) Kenyon International Emergency Services Inc has been honored with the President's 'E' award, the highest US Government recognition that any company can receive for supporting export activity.

Through his National Export Initiative (NEI), President Obama has raised the importance of exporting U.S. manufactured goods and services to support America's continued economic recovery and job creation. The "E" Award recipients are contributors to the President's NEI goal of doubling U.S. exports by 2015, supporting several million American jobs.

Speaking at the company headquarters in Houston, CEO Mr Robert Jensen expressed , "this is a red-letter day for Kenyon. We are an American company and proud of our heritage but we are also a truly international company and this award reflects the quality of our people across the world and the great work they do supporting companies and governments with first-class services".
