

EMERGENCY RESPONSE PLAN WRITING

From Stakeholders to Checklists

Duration: 2 Day

Maximum Attendance: 25

Format: Extensive use of planning materials, large and small group discussions

Description: The Emergency Response Plan is the tangible evidence of the planning process, which should include close coordination, interaction, and buy-in from emergency response stakeholders. A 'good' plan reflects the thorough research of the planners; communication at all levels; support from executives; and, trust by those who must follow its guidance. The planning process begins by assessing the current capability of your company to respond to an emergency.

This course will consider the entire planning process including development and writing of the plan. The audience will evaluate examples of different plans and determine the essential elements that all plans must contain. The aim for the course is to provide delegates with the knowledge, techniques and the material to evaluate and amend existing plans, and to create new plans.
